

door of Number 17, Cherry Tree Lane. The West Wind slips under her opened umbrella and carries her off into the sky or, it may be, into the Dreaming. She has left behind a message for the children, ending "Au revoir," which the cook translates as, "To Meet Again."

Travers, Pamela L.
Mary Poppins Comes Back.
San Diego: Harcourt, Odyssey/Harcourt Young Classic, 1997, c. 1935.